KEYTESVILLE, MISSOURI

Friday, July 18, 1919

Go to it, you prohib congressman. If one may have it, let all who want it have the same enjoyment of some of the good things of life, no matter what they may be.

Thirty-five millions and more lost by government operations of railroads during May. What the loss will be for June is uncertain but greater beyond a doubt. Congress is busy with prohibition and suffrage matters and can give no time for little things like the loss of a few millions here and there. But who is pocketing the change?

It has been disclosed that England, France and Italy agreed to Japan having Shantung, China, after the war. President Wilson objected to that concession being a part of the agreement by the league of nations but a separate agreement exists and Japan will have her way in China or fight. China was one of the best friends of and traders with the United States and England will have scored another hit against us.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Northcutt were in Marceline Monday.

J. Purdy Neel, an All-Kentucky tackle, has been engaged as all-year-round coach at the Chillicothe Business College and is determined to win the Missouri State Conference Championship for the big business school. 24

Hoarders of whiskey, wine and beer may be up against it as hard as any one. Congress is about to rule that it is unlawful to have, keep or allow any intoxicant on private premises. It was charged by one congressman that a number of them had their cellars full and the charge was not denied. Had he said that congressman laid in a supply of edibles the charge would have been no more self evident.

Read Geo. Jordan's article on page seven. It should be of especial interest to soldier, sailor and marine laddies as well as those interested in their future.

I. B. Wiseman came from his home near Cassville, Mo., Saturday, his first visit here in seven years. Mr. Wiseman has profited splendidly from his strawberry patches and if you wish to learn something about the profit in berries, the country where he lives and other matters thereto appertaining, have a chat with him. He is interesting.

300,000 Maxwells; they grow better as their numbers multiply

LIKE an artist who paints a picture, or a man in business, the Maxwell improves with each day's output.

Gradual, almost invisible to the man at the forge or in the accounting office but certain as the rising of the sun, there's an improvement well nigh daily.

There have been five years of making this Maxwell better and better, and the basic design has never changed once in that time.

At one time the Maxwell was known only as a hill-climber. Again it gained attention through its work in rough country. Then it earned a reputation on economy. But gradually it became better and better spoken of for its enduring, everlasting reliability.

That kind of reliability that doesn't burn your pocketbook with repair bills, that knows no task too difficult, that never complains of old age, that gives you about as much trouble as a pair of shoes, that travels on a very small gas appetite.

300,000 of them are in use throughout the world.

In those sections of the world where few cars make good, there you will find the Maxwell—often the dominating car.

The 300,000th Maxwell is the same basic car as Maxwell No. 1. No changes in design—but many improvements.

There's no doubt it's a better car today. Nearly 300,000 of one model has its obvious effects.
